UK Minister Hilary Benn challenged to Apply Solar-based weather forecasts to cut misery & save lives

WeatherAction writes to Minister Benn AGAIN.....

12th Feb 2010

Dear Hilary,

Reduce suffering & save & lives: Long range warnings of continuing dangerous winter weather for UK Feb 2010

Further to our letter of 8 Jan (link WANewsNo5 below and for which we see no reply), you may have noticed all WeatherAction's long range warnings issued 6 months ago and detailed warnings issued mid-December for January of extreme snow and ice conditions in the UK (& Europe & USA) and detailed warnings of when short range TV-Met Office forecasts would underestimate snow/ice deluges have been confirmed. As we warned would happen the UK ran out of road salt for all practical purposes.

Consequent to you and your agencies not using our long range forecasts and instead relying on misleading long range prognoses from the Met Office there has been much unnecessary suffering and economic damage and lives have been lost. This was also the case for the floody non-barbecue summers of 2007, 08 and 09 and winter 08/09 which also saw road salt run out.

We are writing now to remind you and your Highways & other agencies (copied in) of our warnings of further extreme winter weather coming in February as we predicted last July and further detailed in mid January. As you now see our Red Warning that 11/12th Feb (pdf of Feb forecast attached, and see link to WA2010NewsNo9) would have extra snow compared with expectations of standard meteorology was confirmed by 6 inches of snow in parts of Kent - more than double TV forecasts. The danger periods 15-16/17th & 18-19th & 20-21st Feb are also predicted to bring notably severe and dangerous winter weather which will exceed in severity the expectations of standard meteorology from even a day or so ahead.

If you and the BBC want provenly reliable long range forecasts months ahead of weather and weather extremes you only need ask. Do you want to know if the UK will have floods again this summer? It is surely against the public interest for the Government - and indeed all the major parties - to continue to ignore our proven advances in forecasting science and succumb to disingenuous argument and spurious defences of incompetence from interest groups tied to preventing advances beyond standard meteorology and to the ideology of CO2 driven Climate Change for which there is no evidence (NB see footnotes (i), (ii) & (iii) and links).

If you or your agencies wish to use the best available advances and innovation - as the Prime Minister and Lord Mandelson have so rightly said the UK must - and use the forecast and advice attached and apply the warnings and receive further advice of these and other extra dangers please do not hesitate to get in touch.

Thank you

WeatherAction's long range forecast for ongoing cold & snowy weather in Feb issued in July 2009 and the detailed long range warning (issued mid Jan) that more snow would hit than Met Office would say on 11/12th Feb was confirmed. 6 inches fell in parts of Kent. Pic - School run: A parent attempts to take their child

 These periods may be close or overlap but represent waves of separate weather attacks. The magnification of standard meteorology predictions in these periods applies even if the actual weather development is substantially different from the long range forecast in geographical detail.

(i) Refusal to apply our forecasts for public good is sometimes disingenuously put forward on the grounds that the opponents do not know how they work &/or much of what we do is unpublished research. This view is entirely dishonest - not just because it is often made by those who support the suppression of publication of works such as ours and ignore our public presentations - but because our success is nothing to do with who does or doesn't know the details of our forecasting technique. It should be noted that many very successful commercial products work through unpublished commercial or military secrets - eg Coca-Cola and many components in your mobile phone, your computer, airplanes and racing cars.

(ii) Peer reviewed and independent reports proving the significant skill of WeatherAction forecasts are available via <http://www.weatheraction.com/pages/pv.asp?p=wact5&fsize=0> ; and useful web-movies of how solar flares lead to effects in the ionosphere and jet stream and weather in our forecasted Solar Weather Impact periods are available in WeatherActionNews No 9 & No 8 links below.

(iii) There is no observational evidence for the CO2-driven proposition of man-made global warming / climate change only evidence against - see, eg, presentations of peer-reviewed works at WeatherAction public conference Oct 28th 2009 in Imperial College via www.weatheraction.com home page and News archive presentations 80, 81, 82, 83 & 84.
