Snow chaos CONTINUES East USA confirming warning More DANGEROUS WARNINGS issued by WeatherAction

Snowpocalypse USA caused record chaos in East USA for the third day 8 Feb confirming WeatherAction's warning of an 'extra hit' around 7th/8th Feb.

"There is more dangerous weather to come this month for Britain, Ireland, Europe, the USA and other parts of the world" warned Piers Corbyn of WeatherAction long range forecasters 9th Feb. "Our long range forecast says the next big hits will be around Feb 11-13th and really dangerous events 15th-17th. Further notable Solar Weather Impact Periods (SWIPs) continue right through the month and some of their likely impacts around the world – including Australia and the Indian Ocean – are detailed in our forecasts for Extreme events in Europe/Med, and the rest of the World - both on <http://www.weatheraction.com/member.asp> Because of their tremendous importance this month we are today issuing free public summaries and warnings of our extreme events forecasts for the (rest of) the month – see below/over. In the predicted SWIP periods there will also be other extreme events which we as yet do not know about", said Piers.

Extra snow UK on cue

The UK Met Office & German Met Services changed forecasts on 5th Feb to colder and more in line with WeatherAction's forecast. Piers then warned that they hadn't gone far enough and the 8/9th SWIP would bring extra snow beyond the expectations of standard meteorology then. That is what happened.

Extra Dangerous weather around 14-17th Feb

On 9 Feb WeatherAction added two more specific – dangerous – weather events to the 17 specific events forecasted around the world for February. These are for N Atlantic / Europe / Med. Piers Corbyn said: "This period will be very dangerous, there will be many extremes of snow, storms and supercold or heat (S hemisphere) or sharp temperature contrasts in some places."

Around Feb 14-16th (or 15-17th):-

- Massive snow deluges and white-out: Alps – especially French Alps
- A Ferocious storm - Force 11 or probably hurricane force 12 near Iceland

Summary of WeatherAction long range forecast extreme events forecasts

- Fuller details in forecasts via: <http://www.weatheraction.com/member.asp>

USA (East parts*) & South Canada

- continuing in Feb 2010 will have continuing exceptionally cold snowy / icy weather with a series of blizzards / snow deluges and ice storms (Detailed dates & areas in full forecast) as first warned on Jan 2nd.

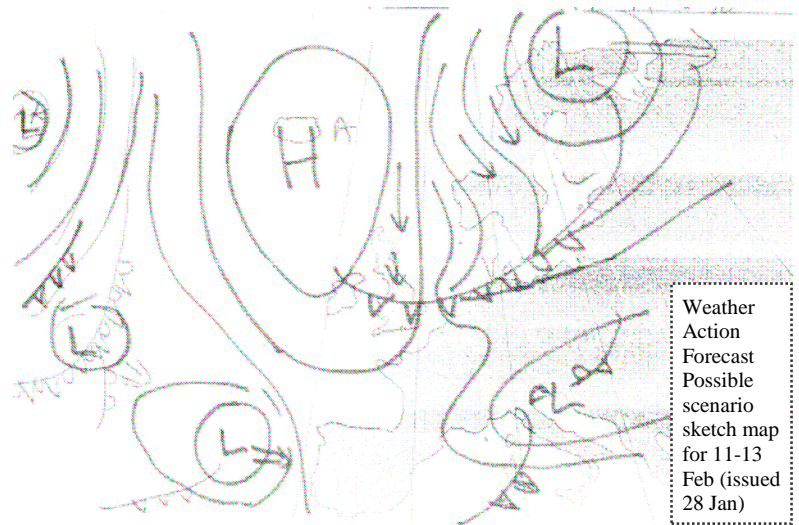

* USA circulation will be often dominated by deep low pressures centred to the North/East & High Pressure ridges over the Rockies. Central & East parts including the SouthEast will continue often exceptionally cold and snowy while the West parts will be milder relative to normal. A powerful storm crosses the SouthEast around 25/26 Feb.

World Circulation Notes Feb 2010.

The Jet stream will be often much more south than normal over North America, the North Atlantic & Europe, and will be exceptionally powerful at times – probably especially so around 12th to 17th.

Continental Europe, Scandinavia & North Mediterranean

in Feb 2010 will have continuing unusually cold snowy / icy weather with a series of blizzards / snow deluges (dates & details in full forecast) in most parts, although the North Med will be more variable. In the second half of the month cyclonic conditions over Britain/Ireland of Returning Polar Maritime air bring widespread snow to W Europe & Scandinavia.

South Indian Ocean & Australasia / South Pacific

6 Tropical storm / cyclone likely formation events specified to region & date and one very intense thunderstorm with giant hail likely in central East Australia specified (details in full forecast)/
