Piers Corbyn making the point in Southend Aug 18th on his Tenants & Residents Association trip - arranged two months ahead - for which he promised fine weather.

The 'Weather Switch' of Aug 18th to finer warm weather (espec in South) confirmed that key aspect of WeatherAction's Long Range August Forecast – HEADLINE (right).

AND Jet Stream Further South switch is coming...

AUGUST 2012	Headline summary & essential weather type development.
A Weather Switch                  England and Wales wet or very wet and cool with major thunder, hail and floods till around 17th then "SUMMER" begins with dry, warm, sunny weather in most of Britain and Ireland for the rest of August

The WeatherAction predicted major Jet Stream Shift to further South – associated with world weather pattern switches from around 18th - is being confirmed by Jet Stream forecasts now showing the main Jet Stream affecting Europe going as far South as SPAIN around 26th August (below = <http://bit.ly/Nmxxm3M>). "Predicting this is a major forecast advance", says Piers Corbyn, astrophysicist of WeatherAction.

Forecast Update

"However the shift has been slower than we expected and bends in the Jet stream in Europe sharper so although 18-19th showed the high pressure in the South we forecast the 2 weather periods August 20-22 & 23-27 are wetter than we expected with thundery showers which will be heavy at times in places (espec Ireland & West Britain while the S/E is sunnier). The forecast comes back on track at end of August with Higher Pressure and NE'y flow we expected looks set to arrive at the start of September.

"We recognise difficulties many farmers are facing in Ireland and West & North Britain and suggest they make the most of whatever sunny breaks there are and expect longer lasting fine weather from the end of August.
